Great Migration has profound effect on history of Coeymans

By Melanie Lekocevic Capital Region Independent Media

COEYMANS - A watershed time period in American history directly led to the construction of one of Coeymans' major landmarks.

Riverview Missionary Baptist Church was the brainchild of African Americans who moved from the South to the North during this time period in search of employment and better opportunities for their families.

The Great Migration took place from the early years of the 1900s through nearly the middle of the century, and had a profound impact on the entire country and the makeup of Coeymans, as well. The time period, and the construction of the local church, was the topic of the February meeting of the Ravena Coeymans Historical Society, with retired Revs. Dr. Roxanne Jones Booth and Antonio

Booth presenting to a packed audience.

"The Great Migration is a period in American history when people moved from one location to another," the Rev. Dr. Roxanne Jones Booth said. "This period of time marked the time when nearly 6 million people of African descent, African Americans, left the South and migrated to the North 6 million.'

Prior to the Great Migration, the vast majority of African Americans lived in the southern states.

small populations of people of color."

In 1900, 90% of the nation's Black population lived in the south, descendants of enslaved people who were now free but had remained in the South. One reason they staved was to search for their relatives, Jones Booth said, family members who had been "sold" to other places in the South and they were still searching for them.

But when families started migrating north, it was a monumental change for the country.

"There was a labor shortage in the wake of the First World War from 1914 to 1917, and we know that people of African descent could not fight in the war because it was segregated," Roxanne Jones Booth said. "So, when white men went away to fight in the war, that left some places and jobs available for people of African descent and they began to migrate to these urban settings. If there was expanding industry, that meant there were job opportunities in northern businesses, such as the railroads. meat-packing companies, brickyards and stockyards — they all recruited people and the people they recruited were those people in the South who were looking for a better opportunity."

"When the Emancipation Proclamation was signed in 1863 when [President Abraham] Lincoln said all the enslaved people in the southern states were now free less than 8% of African Americans lived in the other areas of the United States. So, in the North, Northeast, out west, Midwest, there were

"The Great Migration is considered the largest migration of Americans that this country had ever experienced," Antonio Booth said. "There were 6 million people migrating from one part of the country to another."

The migration was spurred by the need for workers in the North.

J-Park Ice Bowl: 'No Wimps, No Whiners' COMPETITORS HELP TO FEED THE HUNGRY 18 YEARS RUNNING

By Marlene McTigue

Capital Region Independent Media The 18th annual J-Park Ice Bowl went off without a hitch as players from all over the Capital Region and beyond once again donned their gloves, sweaters and wool hats to spend the day in friendly competition and raise money for the hungry.

This year's longest distance driver was Emily Braun from Hudson, Massachusetts.

Since 2006, intrepid competitors have gathered at Joralemon Park to brave the elements and test their skills. It's not for the faint of heart. As always, scheduled in the heart of winter, the bowl's motto is "No Wimps, No Whiners!"

This year, 72 competitors took up the challenge and made up 36 teams in five divisions - Pro, Advanced, Novice, Ladies and Mixed(male/female).

In the simplest of terms and according to the Professional Disc retired from the position after six years at the organization's helm.

This year's Pro winners were the team 6oK's - Harry Lehmann and Jasan Lasasso.

First responders from across several communities and local residents gathered at the ambulance station on Bruno Boulevard to thank Dunican for his service.

"The reason we are here is to show gratitude to Chief Dunican for his service to the rescue squad," new chief Travis Witbeck told the crowd at the beginning of the ceremony. "We have an amazing team right now and that is largely because of the chief."

Dunican has been with the squad for over 20 years, volunteer before the squad beginning in 1999, and took over as chief in November 2017. His last day on the job was Dec. 31, and the squad's ceremony was held earlier this month.

Dunican said he has always been active in the community.

"Growing up in this community I have always been a part of it," he said.

Though he is stepping down from his duties with the rescue squad, Dunican will move to a full-time position working with the Albany County Sheriff's Department, he said.

He started out with the Ravena Rescue Squad as a moved to an all-paid staff, and then took a position with the crew. He moved up through the ranks to the role of supervisor before being named the squad's fifth chief; prior to moving to a paid staff, the squad was led by a captain.

Witbeck said he and Dunican were partners on the squad and the two built a strong professional relationship and friendship. The connection helped when they headed to a rescue call, oftentimes dealing with lifeor-death situations.

"With your partner you just know what needs to be done," Witbeck said. "As time goes on, you build this ment and training, and the had more contact with sick relationship and realize how important that person has become to you. When you share these good and bad experiences, you never forget that."

A slate of community leaders attended the Feb. 10 ceremony thanking Dunican for his service, including Deputy Mayor Nancy Warner, Past Chief Sherle Slingerland, numerous squad members past and present, and members of area fire departments, including Ravena, Coeymans, Coeymans Hollow and New Baltimore. Over the years, Dunican oversaw numerous investments in the squad's equip-squad became more active in the community, Witbeck said.

"Over the last several years, our rescue squad has really gelled and we realized the impact we can have on the community," Witbeck said, adding that the team often attends local events ---such as teaching CPR techniques to anyone who wants to learn. "We really started stepping up into the community.'

Dunican also led the squad through the difficult years of the COVID-19 pandemic.

"There is no organization in this community that people during COVID than the Ravena Rescue Squad," Witbeck said.

Those challenges also made staying afloat more difficult, and Dunican steered the squad through those grim days as well, he added.

"The reason the squad was able to stay in business was because a lot of the time, the chief came in and staffed the truck himself," Witbeck said.

Dunican will remain a member of the Ravena Rescue Squad Board of Directors.

Not just for the men. These two teams of ladies came to compete and have fun at this year's J-Park Ice Bowl. Pictured are The Snow Birdies, Jessica Lasasso and Macia Focht, and The Feline Fatales, Emily Braun and Lisa Lundquestat.

were preachers from Halifax, Virginia, and they started a prayer group to bring people together for prayer and to read the Bible," she said. "One day, the brickvard owner from Sutton & Sudderly told them they need to purchase some land and build a church, and they did — they purchased the land where the building is today." Many of the founding members of the church had masonry skills, and they dug out the foundation and built the church themselves. Women of the prayer group also had a lasting impact on the church's creation. 'Susie Moton and three other women contributed $1 each to purchase the first bricks to build a church building," she said. The Rev. Nathaniel Staggers was the church's first pastor after the building was constructed, and he led the congregation from 1933 to 1946.

Jeff Wiechowski, one of the event's organizers, said the day started with a round of "Best Score," where teams play singles and record only the best score for each hole.

After the first-round, players took a break to have lunch together under the park pavilion, the traditional Ice Bowl fires burning in the fire pits nearby to warm competitors.

After lunch came a round of Best Shot, which is "basically a two-player scramble," according to Wiechowski.

The day of the competition started out cloudy and cold with occasional sunlight, but in typical Ice Bowl fashion, it ended with snow and wind.

As is true of every year's event, it's not all about the competition. Part of what makes the Ice Bowl such a memorable event is that these disc golfers are also working for a greater good that goes beyond competing for the win.

part of the event is making a donation to help feed the hungry. This year a raffle of items was held that raised over $500. Also, mulligans were sold and raised over $700.

"All told we raised $3,000 and collected about 80 pounds of food items for the Regional Food Bank of Northeastern New York," Wiechowski said.

It was a banner year as the contributions just keep growing, the organizer said.

"In 2023 we raised $1,500, 2022 was $1,800," he said. "Totals over 18 years is around $20,000 and Melanie Lekocevic/Capital Region Independent Media

When families arrived in Coeymans, they took on a variety of jobs, many with the local brickyard. In addition to moving their families to the North, they also brought another important aspect of their lives.

Though last Thursday's event was all about getting membership together and having a good time, many local businesses volunteered their time and services to enhance the party atmosphere. As attendees ascended the steps from the lower level of Patrick Henry's to the second floor event space, they were greeted by a festive atmosphere. In one corner near the bar, participants could don feather boas, hats and crazy sunglasses before they hopped up into 360 Photo Booth provided by 360 Photo Fun by R U Ready Events, free chair massages by Jessica Whitbeck of Body Balance Massage, and a chance to meet and have photos taken with Henry Bellagnome, the Capital District Tourism Gnome. Aaron Flach, a CBA member and owner/developer of Patrick Henry's, The Wire Conference Center and the James Newberry Hotel, led attendees on a tour of the campus' properties. Long-time members took part in the fun as well as some new faces. Eric and Nadia Busuttil of Brooklyn were in the area for the NYS Legislative and Business Conference in Albany. "It's a great opportunity to connect with the community and talk about the health benefits of massage," said Whitbeck, whose massage studio is located on Route 9W in Ravena. "Being a member of the CBA has helped grow my business in the community and connect with others as well. It's so important to get to know the businesses here and having an association like CBA is something I'm very grateful for."

While CBA leadership is working on the school budget review session planned for the upcoming weeks they also have another reason to celebrate. March will mark the launch of Discover RCS, a community and business attraction program years in the making.

According to Vice Chair Rebecca Flach, who spearheaded the project, "The goal at Discover RCS is to showcase the excellence of Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk, promoting its finest attributes to generate interest and investment in our charming small towns."

A kickoff party where members and nonmembers alike will be the first to see the new website and accompanying hard copy of the community business map is planned for the upcoming weeks. Check back in with the News-Herald to learn more.

My, how things have changed

WHITTLING AWAY

DICK BROOKS

In spite of my advancing age, there are still those rare moments when things snap into focus. It's at these times that I realize that things are missing or not the same.

Watches for instance — have you noticed they are disappearing? Very few folks under the age of 25 wear one. Ask them the time and they pull out their cellphones — if they weren't already talking or texting on them.

What ever happened to those bell hoses at gas stations? I can't remember the last one I saw. I used to love jumping on them until the station owner came out and chased me away. They're probably stored away with the old Texaco uniforms, bow ties, hats and all. When was the last time you went to a gas station and someone came out, pumped your gas, washed your windshield, checked your oil and gave you a glass or a plate and Green Stamps?

For that matter, what happened to Green Stamps? They used to be everywhere. I can remember my mother sending me back into a store because I'd forgotten the Green Stamps. They were taken home and pasted carefully into their little book. Twenty or so books taken to the Green Stamp store would get you a washcloth or an ashtray.

Remember ashtrays? Another object that's disappeared. They used to be everywhere, every home had a selection, the fanciest one was always on the coffee table in the living room. The better homes had a cigarette lighter next to it that matched the ashtray. Our public library had ashtrays on the tables where you read your books.

I don't remember when glass milk bottles went away. Those little paper tops with the pull tab on the side were so much easier to use than those paper cartons with the pull and pinch spouts that drive me crazy.

Some of these things are hard to explain to those who have never experienced them. I tried to explain The Empire State to a youngster the other day. Do you remember The Empire State? You don't hear much about it nowadays. It seems to have gone the way of the bell hose and the ashtrays.

We learned all about it when I was a mere lad. It had the biggest city in the world. Its education system was the envy of all the other 47 states. It was the financial center of the world. It had the tallest building on Earth. The highest standard of living and the best medical care anywhere was found there. Of all the busy and beautiful places on this old planet, this was the biggest, the brightest and the best. Everyone wanted to live in The Empire State. People came here from all over the world and we welcomed them because that's what you do when you're The Empire State. Yep, I wonder where all these things went. I miss them, but that's what life's all about. I guess change is a good thing but sometimes a glance backwards is a good thing. A rearview mirror gives you a clear vision of where you've been and is a useful thing.

Finding family: LadyBug's path to trust and togetherness

Horses of Unbridled

SUSAN KAYNE

Amid the fields of Unbridled Sanctuary, a young life of one year frolics freely with her friends. She is a leggy filly with a fine silhouette, untouched by the harsh realities her mother once faced.

Her name is LadyBug, and on Feb. 23, 2024, we celebrated a milestone her first year at Unbridled, marking what is technically her second birthday, as all Thoroughbreds age a year each Jan. 1.

Born on Feb. 23, 2023, LadyBug's arrival was a joyous event and a testament to Unbridled's unwavering dedication to helping horses my earliest days. Shielded within our stall, her presence a constant reassurance amidst the world's unknown sounds. The soft straw and

LADYBUG: MY FIRST YEAR AT UNBRIDLED

The ground under my hooves is hard and uneven, crunching with each step. Yet, this doesn't deter me and my friend Lil'Pea from enjoying our time together. Today, Sweet Pea joins us, dividing her time between us and Arnie, the big white mule whom I also admire. He greets us over the fence occasionally.

With winter upon us, our outdoor activities and spaces shift with the weather. Despite the cold, the afternoon sun beams down, warming my dark, fluffy coat like a natural heater. Beside Lil'Pea, we rest, almost dozing on our feet after a hearty breakfast, too full to even nibble at the alfalfa at our hooves.

This season brings memories of my first mama, Ivy. Folks often say I resemble her. She was my universe in my earliest days. Shielded within our stall, her presence a constant reassurance sounds. The soft straw and her warm side were my sanctuary, each heartbeat and nuzzle a lesson in love and security. Then, a day arrived that changed everything. I was playing in the indoor arena with mama, she laid down to roll in the sand, just like she always did. She loved to roll back and forth, then she would stand up tall on her hind legs, shake her head, and then we'd run around in circles and buck and twist our necks. But this time, she didn't get up. I pawed, nuzzled and nickered at her. She didn't move. I was taken to our stall. I was alone. People were there, but not mama. The stall felt larger without her, each corner echoing with the memory of her presence. The loneliness was indescribable, my calls for mama answered in silence. Then came a big red mare, she kind of looked like Miss Ruud and Lucky. She answered my cries, but I did not know her, I had never seen her before. Susan said, "LadyBug, this is Merry, she will help you." Merry was gentle, and they put me in a stall with her. I was terrified. Merry nuzzled me, she nudged at me like mama did. And she had milk like mama, too. She actually let me drink! I missed mama's milk. Merry kept pushing at me and guiding me to drink. She must have sensed my hunger and loss. Merry was not Ivy, but she was my new mama. She loved me and cared for me as if I was her very own foal. She taught me to trust again. In her strength I felt the promise of who need a lifeline.

LadyBug's mother, Ivy, a beautifully pedigreed Thoroughbred, was known by her registered name, "I Get By." She was born in Kentucky on Feb. 8, 2015. As a yearling, she sold for $35,000 through Keeneland and entered the racing world.

To us, she is simply "Ivy." Found pregnant and abandoned at the Unadilla auction, tethered in a dark corner, Ivy was mere steps away from entering the slaughter pipeline. Unbridled stepped in, outbidding a local horsemeat broker, to offer her and the unborn foal she carried a chance at a new life.

LadyBug arrived tall and sassy with exceptionally long legs and a distinct spoon-shaped marking on her face. Ivy adored her little filly. The "silver spoon" upon her forehead transcends the traditional understanding of wealth and privilege by representing the boundless love, safety and protection she was granted from the moment she entered the world within the nurturing embrace of Unbridled, where every equine is seen not as a commodity, but as a beloved sentient being deserving of respect, care and dignity.

As the first filly born under Unbridled's care, LadyBug is a living testament to the Sanctuary's mission. Delving into her diary, we encounter her experiences, shared in her own voice. Through her eyes, we're taught not about birthdays, but about the moments that define a life.

Now, I am one year old! My home is a place of gentle strength and shared spirits. Merry, along with her friend Maddie, coddled me. It took them a long time to allow me to play with other horses. Finally, the day came when I got to say hello to Sweet Pea and Cinnamon Sparkles. But they were friends first and hadn't room for a little sister.

From across the laneway, Lil'Pea was watching me try to make friends. She was with her friends Heaven, Angel and Red. But she was different. While the trio played, she watched me. I felt her curious gaze on me, like she was secretly calling to me. One day, when we were turned out inside, Lil'Pea came up to the fence and we sniffed noses. Susan let her in the space with me, mama Merry and Aunt Maddie. Of course, they had to check out Lil'Pea first. They gave us the go ahead to play and we have been best friends ever since.

Now, I live with Lil'Pea. She is just a few years older than me. I cherish her companionship. We play a lot together. If we are not playing, we are eating or resting, or flat-out REM sleeping!

My heart, once shattered by loss, is slowly mending through the love and care of those around me.

Smoozzles, LadyBug

Forgive and forget

Positively Speaking

TOBY MOORE

My mom always said to me, "Toby, just forgive and forget." I always thought, "Of course, just forgive and forget." But when I got older and serious offenses came my way, I found it wasn't that simple.

I'm all about forgiveness. It's not easy to do, and although having an attitude of forgiveness benefits you more than anyone else, letting go of all the feelings is challenging. How do you forget? Is that even possible? I think it is but it's not a one-sided issue.

Sometimes, I've forgiven someone who has treated me badly, but then, a month or two later, I've found myself angry with them all over again. That leads me to wonder, "Wait, I thought I forgave them. Why am I feeling this way?" Does that mean I didn't forgive them. or maybe that I did forgive but didn't forget?

I don't have an easy answer.

If you forgive someone, does that mean you give them another chance to hurt you? Is that what it means to forgive and forget? We just pretend it never happened and give them another chance?

That old saying, "Fool me once, shame on you; fool me twice, shame on me!" resonates here. There's also, "Forgive but never forget."

Is it possible to forgive and forget? Won't we always remember? On a human level, this is complex. In some religious traditions, it's said that God forgives and forgets our wrongs. But can humans do the same?

Bishop Desmond Tutu, happened, but then I noticed who endured the profound injustices of South Africa's apartheid system, came to believe that "Forgiving is not forgetting; it's remembering remembering and not using your right to hit back. It's a second chance for a new beginning.'

This quote underscores the nuanced nature of forgiveness, suggesting it's about choosing not to retaliate rather than erasing the memory.

I try to take a path of forgiving before someone has even asked for forgiveness but the reasons for that are probably selfish because I understand a little about how bitterness can destroy the body and soul, but then I ask myself, "Is that real forgiveness, or is that me letting it go? And is that the same thing?"

Some of the people I find myself wanting to forgive the most are those who hurt me deeply, including family members and close friends. I forgave them as soon as it

a pattern of repeated offenses

I've had family members who were combative towards me on a regular basis, often pushing me to the brink of madness every time I saw them. No matter what I did or how I approached the situation, it seemed they were out to get me. What made it especially hard was the fact that they were family, and it appeared there was nothing I could do to fix it — mainly because they didn't want to fix it.

Time and again, I'd forgive them and then try to help them or spend time with them, thinking things would change. However, the same old pattern not only kept repeating itself but also got significantly worse with each visitation. I didn't know what to do, and when I got my first opportunity, I packed up and left town as quickly as I could. I saw no other solution but to run away.

It's a strange thing but some people won't stop until they just can't do it anymore and oftentimes that means removing yourself from the situation altogether so they don't have the opportunity to do it again.

Dr. Robert Enright, a psychologist and pioneer in the study of forgiveness, suggests that forgiveness is a choice and a process, not a one-time act or an erasure of memory. He argues that forgiveness can lead to psychological and relational healing but doesn't necessarily mean forgetting or condoning the offense.

One day, it dawned on me that, although I'm protecting myself against bitterness by trying to forgive and forget, they never apologized or acknowledged their wrongdoings so why am I allowing them the opportunity to do it again? How can I forget when they haven't apologized?

Forgiveness involves more than just letting go of resentment. Even if you've forgiven someone and are keen on "remembering no more," there's another component to the story.

Did they ask for forgiveness? Have they taken steps to ensure it will never happen again? If not, then experience tells me it's going to happen again and forgetting the offense is futile.

I remain committed to practicing the art of forgiveness. However, granting someone access to my life again and considering a renewed friendship demands their active involvement. While I acknowledge that forgiveness can be a solitary journey, I've come to understand that truly moving beyond the hurt — to forgive and forget-necessitates regaining trust from the person who wronged me.

Thus, though forgiveness may be the work of one, the process of fully forgiving and forgetting involves the efforts of two.

He was the only RCS athlete to head to the New York State Public High School Athletic Association, or NYSPHSAA, state championship.

The state's best wrestlers traveled to the MVP Arena on Friday and Saturday to vie for the state champion-

Acomb competed in the 116-pound weight class and lost by technical fall to Dylan DePew-Cappadonia 17-2 in 4:45. DePew-Cappadonia, of Canisteo-Greenwood, would go on to take fifth place in the state at 116.

Tip-up tips

Tip-ups are often a mainstay in an ice angler's arsenal of fishing gear.

They are designed to sit over a hole in the ice and passively fish by holding bait at a selected depth. A flag pops up to indicate when a fish is on the end of the line.

Tip-ups are great when fishing with kids because it can be a lot of fun racing to a tripped flag to pull in their catch.

Regulation Reminder: No more than seven ice-fishing lines in any combination of devices (includes hand lines/ jigging rods, tip-ups and tipdowns) per angler are permitted (unless otherwise noted in Special Regulations).

TIP UP TIPS: • It's always a good idea to periodically check your back in can prevent your tip up from working properly. Added bonus: Doing this moves your tip-up, which can cause your minnow to also move around, potentially eliciting some extra strikes.

• Try setting your tip ups at various depths from the bottom. If you notice you're catching more fish at a particular depth, adjust the rest of them to the same depth.

• Orient tip-ups in a line or direction so a simple glance can check the series of tip-ups.

• Keep bait bucket water temperature as close to lake's temperature as possible. Dropping baitfish into water 10 degrees or more colder can shock the fish and diminish their vigor. • Try different sizes of bigger the bait... the bigger the fish. If large minnows aren't working, try downsizing bait for finicky fish.

Use the appropriate strength fluorocarbon leader for species targeted. For example, 6- to 8-pound test for walleye versus 12- to 20-pound test for northern pike.

Place an adjustable depth marker on backing line (button, small bobber, etc.) so when landing a fish you can quickly reset the tip-up to the same depth.

• To prevent the spread of aquatic invasive species, dump unused bait in a trash can and bucket water on dry land (never back in the water).

Empty Bowls event raises $1K donation to Regional Food Bank

BETHLEHEM — On Wednesday, Feb. 14, Students for Peace and Survival (SPAS) at BCHS presented Betsy Dickson of the Regional Food Bank of Northeastern New York with a check for $1,000 to help address food insecurity.

The money was raised during the high school's Empty Bowls event. The food provided by the Regional Food Bank helps to feed over 350,000 people each month. The organization serves 23 counties in New York state.

Dickson is the senior director of children's programs for the Regional Food Bank. She was also the guest speaker at the club's meeting where she spent time with the students describing the programs provided by the food bank and answering questions posed by students.

Several of the students' questions focused on the important role schools play in helping to address food insecurity for students. Dickson spoke about the efforts by healthy food advocates to bring universal free breakfast and lunch to New York state. She also spoke about the importance of eligible families applying for free school meals available through the Free and Reduced Lunch program.

In-Play: 'The Minutes' reveals the truth about small-town America

By Sophie Yalkezian

For Capital Region Independent Media Sitting on a quiet residential block, you could easily miss the old firehouse facade of the Albany Civic Theatre

(ACT). Beyond its worn red block lettering is a theatrical institution that's been churning out an impressive rotation of productions since its inception back in 1955. We were lucky enough to catch their latest show, a dark comedy penned by "August: Osage County" writer Tracy Letts, titled "The Minutes."

Beyond the laughs, this play asks its audience to reexamine their unavoidable role in the societal institutions that hold our communities together. Over the course of an hour and 45 minutes, the audience witnessed a droll city council meeting in the fictional town of Big Cherry slowly reveal the darkest truths of the American political landscape, exemplifying why it's so hard to fight for change, let alone enact it, from the comfortable seat of privilege.

The experienced cast gave stellar performances, from Alexandra Doggette playing mousy court clerk Johnson to Patrick White's full-throated hilarity in the role of Councilman Assalone (pronounced Ass-alon-ay, which he repeated to the crowd's delight). Ryan Palmer and Gary Hoffmann brought incredible comedic timing to their council member characters, who were equal parts irksome and beloved.

The heart of this story centers around newcomer councilman Peel, gracefully played by Kevin O'Toole in his ACT mainstage debut. His plucky charm and hearty handshakes had the audience rooting for him as he unpeeled the layers of a controversial history the council was attempting to keep closed.

Humor sharply cut through tension a number of times throughout the night, including when Aaron Moore's councilman Blake earnestly argued for a cage match-style fight called the "Lincoln Smackdown" to be performed at the town festival

Near its conclusion, the theater turned still as Bill Douglas delivered a stunning monologue as councilman Carp. His character exists only in flashback, as a past transcript is read, but manages to steal the show entirely with his candor and warmth. His words evoke the question held at the center of this play: What kind of community do we create when we ignore the truth?

"The Minutes" runs through March 3. Tickets can be purchased on their website at albanycivictheater.org.

Negativity is not cheering for us to succeed

LIVING ON PURPOSE

Dr. William Holland

I want to begin today by saving how much I appreciate you for being a faithful reader of this newspaper and this column. Newspapers are still considered valuable to the older generations as they remember their grandparents and parents who embraced the daily news as part of their regular routines. As technology is constantly advancing, we see younger readers choosing to receive their information through various forms of modern media rather than holding the printed page. I'm personally grateful for all the great publications that agree to carry columns like "Living on Purpose" as they believe sharing positive and thought-provoking content is a blessing to their audience.

Since the beginning of the year, I admit the messages have been rather sobering. Focusing on self-examination and searching deep into our soul about what we believe is usually not a top priority. We talked about the carnal desires of our flesh, compromising, justifying our rebellion, and how we have the free will ability to ignore intentional sin without the concern to repent.

By the way, repentance is more than saying we're sorry. We used the example of Achan and asked if intentional sin is hindering the churches and the demonstration of God's glory today. We agreed that sin offends His holiness and obstructs the advancement of His kingdom.

Is something making you sad or anxious today? Have you spent time with God about it? Facing hardships and trials is a part of life, but holding on to the one that does not falter and is never caught by surprise is our greatest hope for being content and enjoying the abundant life we will ever have.

There is no such thing as God being confused and pacing the floor unsure of what to do. The mountain plateaus feel good and we love these seasons of victory, but when we enter into a dark valley, though it's not pleasant, it can give us peace and security to understand that Christ is always teaching and ready to carry us through suffering in His perfect time.

We decide which view of life we will embrace. If our mind is set on being negative, there is little anyone can say or do to cheer us up. However, for those who choose the higher road of embracing optimism, no dead-end or dire situation can prevent faith and hope from declaring that anything is impossible with God.

To think or say there is no answer to a certain circumstance is revealing to ourselves and the world we no longer believe that God is who He says He is. Ephesians 3:20 promises, "Now to him who is able to do immeasurably more than all we ask or imagine, according to his power that is at work within us."

If the devil or anything in this life is more powerful than God, then either He is not the Almighty or our view of Him is in error. Which do you believe? God's word reassures us in Jeremiah 32:17, "O sovereign Lord! You made the heavens and earth with your strong hand and powerful arm. Nothing is too difficult for you!"

We know the dark side is not trying to help us be a light for God or a spiritual overcomer, which should inspire our faith to become stronger in our quest to please Christ. We become good and faithful soldiers through extensive training and developing a passion to be a living sacrifice for His glory.

We cannot succeed for the Lord if we are ready to give up every time we are challenged. Babe Ruth hit 714 home runs but also struck out 1,333 times. Cy Young is famous for winning 511 games, but did you know he lost 316 times? The point is that defeat does not mean failure and no one who is known for great accomplishments has ever avoided disappointments.

Thursday, February 29, 2024 B3

It's easy to stay enthused when times are good, but our perseverance goes on trial when we face discouragement from difficulty. Our thoughts can come from God or the devil and both have a plan. If God is saying to stand and press through the pain, then He has a vision that will eventually bring victory and joy. However, if we choose to agree with the enemy, he will forever keep us offended and tangled up in a depressing victim mentality. God can help us succeed when we have an unrelenting determination to become like Him.

Medicare's dreaded 'IRMAA' provision

SOCIAL SECURITY MATTERS

RUSSELL GLOOR

Dear Rusty:

My wife is on Medicare and receiving Social Security benefits each month. We built a house and used money from our investments to pay for it. We knew we would pay taxes on that withdrawal, but my wife got a letter from Social Security like your wife is a victim saying that because the money we withdrew was listed as income, her 2024 Medicare premium went up over $500. And since Medicare is taken out of her Social Security, that results in a $6,000 loss to our budget.

Is there anything that can be done about this situation? We sent a letter to Social Security, but they responded that unless her situation was one of only a few categories (loss of house, divorce, etc.) nothing could be done for the year.

The money was used strictly on another investment — our new house. It wasn't like we took it out and spent it wildly. Can you please advise?

Signed: Frustrated Homeowner

Dear Frustrated: Unfortunately, it sounds of the Medicare provision known as "IRMAA" - the "Income Related Monthly Adjustment Amount."

Each person's Medicare Part B premium (coverage for outpatient health care) is determined yearly from their income from all sources as reported to the IRS two years prior. IRMAA sets income thresholds, depending on your IRS filing status, and if those thresholds are exceeded you must pay a higher Medicare Part B premium (and also a higher Part D premium if you have prescription drug coverage).

Assuming you file your taxes as "married/jointly," if your combined 2022 income as a couple was between $206,000 and $258,000, your wife's 2024 Part B premium is $244.60 (instead of the standard $174.70); if your combined 2022 income IRMAA premium increase was between $258,000 and $322,000 then your wife's Part B premium for 2024 is $349.40; if your combined in 2022 was between $322,000 and $386,000, her Part B premium is $454.20; if your combined 2022 income as a married couple was between $386,000 to $750,000 then your wife's 2024 Part B premium is $559; and if your 2022 income as a married couple was over $750,000 your wife's Part B premium is $594.

If your wife also has private Part D prescription drug coverage, IRMAA also increases those premiums. Note that the IRMAA thresholds are different for other income tax filing statuses.

As the Social Security office has already explained, you could appeal your wife's if she had a "life-changing event," but the list of acceptable life changing events is quite small (see form SSA-44).

The only good news is that your wife's Medicare premium will be calculated anew for next year, so her Medicare premium for 2025 will — if your 2023 joint income is less than the first IR-MAA threshold — revert to the standard 2025 premium.

FYI, it doesn't matter what you used the money for. Your withdrawal was reported to the IRS as taxable income, which is what caused IRMAA to apply to your wife's Medicare premium for 2024. Many people don't realize that Medicare premiums are higher for those with a higher income, but since your withdrawal was a one-time event, your wife's Medicare Part B premium next year should be much less and her Social Security benefit correspondingly higher.

THE RETIRED INVESTOR

BILL SCHMICK

The chocolate crisis, or where is Willie Wonka when you need him

Valentine's Day has come and gone. About 92% of American consumers were planning to share chocolate and other candies for Valentine's Day this year, according to the National Confectioners Association, but the price tag for that heartshaped box of chocolates may have left a bad taste in many a mouth this year.

Last year, chocolate sales exceeded more than $4 billion. It feels like I paid my fair share of that total. You see my wife, Barbara, loves chocolate, so giving a gift on Valentine's Day was easy. Along with flowers and a card, a generous amount of dark chocolate (but not milk chocolate) in any formhearts, cups, dipped pretzels, bonbons, truffles--is sure to win the day. Her craving, however, transcends that one day, so chocolate is my go-to source for gift-giving on birthdays, and most holidays. As such, in this era of inflation, I have kept track of how much these sweet dark delights are costing me. This year, I was not surprised to see candy prices continue higher. Retail chocolate prices have risen about 17% over the last two years, according to a report by Co-Bank, and I expect they will continue to do so. Why?

Cocoa, a main ingredient in chocolate, is responsible for much of the price rise. The price of cocoa hit record highs last week, just in time for Valentine's Day. Prices have doubled over the past year and are up 40% since January. This week cocoa futures prices continued higher to $6,030 per ton, another record high. The outlook for the 2024 growing season is worsening, which is leading to fears of a larger global deficit.

Cocoa, you see, is another victim of climate change. Poor weather and crop disease have afflicted the world's main cocoa-growing region, which is in West Africa. Massive rains followed by severe drought, coupled with wind, devastated the cocoa crop. Insects and disease followed shortly thereafter. This has led to the third year in a row where cocoa harvests have been coming up short.

But don't think that higher prices in the futures markets are making growers in Ghana and the Ivory Coast rich. Ghanaian farmers are receiving between $1,800 and $1,900 per ton and Ivorian growers even less ($1,600/ton), according to the Ghana Cocoa Marketing Company. In both countries, the government controls prices that farmers receive, which are based on prices that were current anywhere from 12 to 18 months ago. That is an unworkable sys-

W

The chocolate crisis tem but that is another story. It is the world's hedge funds that have reaped most of the benefits of this surge in prices. At the end of 2023, speculative traders began massing billion-dollar bets on cocoa futures contracts, gambling that this year's harvests would be poor as well. At this point, the hedge fund community has the largest risk exposure ever, according to the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, with more than $8 billion in futures positions.

Of course, with all these new traders jumping into the market, prices have soared, but so has volatility, making it even more difficult for processors to hedge their purchases. They need cocoa beans to make cocoa butter to supply chocolate makers. As a chocolate buyer throughout this period, I have noticed that big companies like Nestle and Cadbury have been raising prices consistently for the last two vears.

Hershey, one of America's most loved chocolate makers, said product prices rose 6.5% in the fourth quarter, and 9% in all of 2023. The company is planning on cutting 5% of its workforce because price inflation is forcing consumers to pull back on purchases.

The bad news is that not only are cocoa prices continuing to rise, but so too are the price of sugar and wages. Both are key components in just about every chocolate factory including Willi Wonka's, where even Oompa-Loompas demand raises. I would expect that by Easter we will see yet another hike in chocolate prices and by Halloween, well, who knows? So, unless you discover a golden ticket inside your chocolate bar, I would buy it early.

Leap into these Leap Year facts

Leap Year typically takes place every four years. The process of adding a day to the calendar every four years was designed to realign the clock and calendar more closely with how long it takes the Earth to rotate around the sun, which is slightly longer than the 365 days attributed to a year.

If not for Leap Year, the seasons would slowly shift out of place.

This year is a Leap Year, meaning February has 29 days instead of the usual 28.

There are many interesting facts to learn about Leap Year, and Feb. 29 is the perfect time to explore them.

• It takes the Earth 365 days, five hours, 48 minutes and 45 seconds to circle once around the sun, says Time and Date. Without leap years, we would lose almost six hours every year. After a century, the calendar would be off by nearly 24 days.

• Despite 2100, the next turn of the century, being divisible by four, it will not be a leap year. That's because it is divisible by 100 but not 400, which means it will not be a leap year. This exception to the rule pertains to new century years.

• Forbes reports that it is likely the calendar will need to be changed again since the Earth's rotation rate, the axial tilt orientation and the Earth's orbital motion around the sun is not constant. Various effects, such as earthquakes and something called tidal braking, affect the passage of time.

• Legend states that on Feb. 29, it is alright for a woman to propose to a man, a custom attributed to St. Bridget. Bridget complained to St. Patrick that some women had to wait too long for their suitors to pop the question. As the legend goes, Patrick supposedly provided women this day to propose to compensate.

Some cultures view Feb. 29 as an unlucky day. In Greece, couples are warned against planning weddings during leap years. In Italy, the phrase, "Anno biseto, anno funesto," ("leap year, doom year") is uttered.

• Individuals who are born on Feb. 29 are known as leaplings or leapers.

• Leap Day is not considered a legal day. Those who are leaplings have to choose February 28 or March 1 for their official and legal birthdays.

Sleeping like a baby

BODY, MIND & SPIRIT

PAT LARSEN

THAT was just the teaser. Honestly, the question on the minds of mostly everyone is, "How do we... sleep like a baby again?"

I have no answers that you probably haven't heard of or tried before. So, let's approach this topic with a more commonsense consideration and see if that will trigger a solution for you and me both.

We all need sleep. Back in the day, sleep came after a good long hard day's work. Now that we're retired or working from home on a computer, or meeting friends at Stewart's for a cup of coffee until just before lunch, we can't exactly admit that any degree of "hard work" has taken place, can we?

There are no alarms going off except the ones that we hear outside our windows suggesting the roosters are serenading us at 4:45 a.m.

So, thinking this subject over, I've concluded, we have to look at "sleep" differently than we did years ago.

Gone are the nights of eight hours of deep, restorative sleep. Away with the notion that at nighttime we don those cute little Llama PJs and slip into warm flannel sheets after drinking some warm milk.

I give my vote to sleep when you just feel like it, day or night. Be sure you've fed the cats or the dog first, though, before resting that head on the down pillow. Put away the computerized solitaire game and stop scrolling on your phone to look for the next best game app

You get tired, you go to sleep for a bit. Who knows, maybe even a few hours. Just take that continuous that you don't have to subscribe to anymore.

Nap... maybe two times a day. Get up when you're feeling refreshed. If it's the middle of the night, go outside and look up. The nighttime sky is awash with satellites streaming on by and star constellations that you probably haven't considered for years.

Play a game of "stay awake" by actively NOT closing your eyes.

Take a break from continuously thinking that you should be sleeping and enjoy the evening by reading a book, listening to soothing music, or knitting.

I particularly love imagining that I'm telling a story to my grandkids. Maybe even a favorite from your pressure off an expectation childhood and see if you can recall all the details, even if it's something as simple as "Goldilocks and the Three Bears" or "Little Red Riding Hood."

Ever have a truly "happy" place that you've enjoyed? That could be great imagery to conjure up and replay from beginning to end.

Stop pressuring your-self into sleep. Think about anything else but what you think you should be doing and just relax into the time you're spending in bed or on that couch enjoying the simplicity of the moment.

If you find yourself roaming around rather than in bed, do something like watering the plants or uncluttering a drawer. I know that kind of sounds like a ridiculous task-oriented solution but it's productive and you already are frustrated by not sleeping so why not turn that into a check mark on your other "to do" list.

The "sleeping like a baby" ship may have sailed for all of us but we can make the best of the already frustrating scenario that is unnecessarily keeping us awake anyway.

Until then, may the sleep fairy sprinkle some sleepy dust in our eyes often and soon!

Life always offers us another chance... it's called tomorrow. Nighty night all!

Nvidia leads markets to record highs

BILL SCHMICK

Stocks forged ahead this week, making new highs with technology stocks continuing to take the lead. Financial flows into equity buoyed the overall market despite some disappointing results in the U.S. government's Treasury auctions.

move higher must go to the number one AI stock in the world, Nvidia.

It was touch and go on Wednesday night as all eyes waited for Nvidia's earnings results. The Street was divided on which way the markets would go. It depended on whether this leading semiconductor company could beat estimates once again and deliver higher forward guidance on the world's demand for its artificial intelligence chips.

Both the Mag 7 and the AI 5 stocks spent the beginning of the week falling in fear that Nvidia results could not possibly top the results of the last two quarters. Strategists were warning that the entire market was at risk since the AI boom has

Credit for the continued been the main driver of the market's advance for more than a year.

The company's corporate earnings and sales not only fulfilled the hopes of the biggest bulls but super charged the price of every stock that was even remotely involved in the AI boom. Nvidia hit a new high for the year on Thursday and Friday while triggering an almost 3% gain on the NASDAQ. The S&P 500 Index added close to 2%, although the Dow and the Russell 2000 small cap index did add far less.

And while stocks rallied, bonds did the opposite. The U.S. Treasury's ten-year bond yield has been climbing higher, reaching 4.319%. Bond buyers are insisting on higher returns, and they should, given the billions of dollars in bonds the Treasury is auctioning this quarter and next. In the recent past, this reaction in the fixed-income market would have put downward pressure on stocks, but not this week.

The need of the U.S. Treasury to sell more longer-dated bonds and fewer short-term notes is forcing the Fed into a quandary. While the Fed stands pat on raising interest rates any further, the Treasury auction sales are forcing yields higher anyway. If this continues, (and it will) at some point equity investors will start to pay attention. That would not be good news for the stock market. In an election year, this could spell trouble for the incumbent.

The Fed may be forced to somehow ease the situation, but how? They have already said that cutting Interest rates too soon might spark an upsurge in inflation. The obvious answer, therefore, would be to ease up on the pedal of quantitative tightening, which would inject more liquidity into the financial markets. That would be good for markets and presumably the President.

But right now, momen-ered the opposite results.

The momentum in the U.S. stock market is beginning to catch on in global markets as well. Japan's benchmark Nikkei Index hit a record high this week, beating the previous record set 34 years ago. Shares in Frankfurt, Paris and Milan gained more than 1% while Europe's Stoxx 600 Index also hit an all-time high. Even China, considered a basket case and the worst market around, has seen stocks gain over the last week or two.

This stock market rally is getting a bit long in the tooth. The last two rallies that occurred (between 2022 and 2023) lasted between 16 and 19 weeks, gaining 20% and 21% respectively. This pres-ent one is in its 17th week with a gain of 23% thus far. Could it run further?

Yes, technical charts say we can, even though we could see some shortterm weakness ahead. It appears that financial flows into equity markets are still strong, so there is enough buying power available to fuel further upside. And so far, stocks have not fallen on good news, if this week bond yields, the dollar, or even corporate earnings for the most part. We have entered a riskier period of the market that can deliver great gains and great losses in quick succession. The first half of the week saw stocks plummet in fear that one company's results would take the entire market down. Thursday and Friday deliv-

County's second annual Farmers Market scheduled

ALBANY — Albanv County Executive Daniel P. McCoy, MVP Health Care President and CEO Chris Del Vecchio and the Downtown Albany Business Improvement District have announced the return of the Albany County Farmers Market.

The market has been expanded and will run each Sunday from July 14 to Sept. 29, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on South Pearl Street in front of the MVP Arena.

"Thanks to the overwhelming support of our community, and with the help of our partners at the Downtown Albany Business Improvement District and MVP Health Care, the Farmers Market has grown into a weekly event this year," said Albany County Executive McCoy "This will provide even more opportunities for residents and visitors to enjoy locally sourced produce and other products while supporting local business.

The Farmers Market series is supported by the Innovation Fund, a partnership between Albany County and MVP Health Care. The purpose of the fund is to improve the overall health and vitality of the surrounding community. The fund also promotes the MVP Arena as a marquee asset to the community by supporting healthier, inclusive and expanded opportunities.

"At MVP Health Care, we know that healthy food is good medicine, which is why the Farmers Market is vital to improving the overall health and well-being of our community," said MVP Health Care's President and CEO, Chris Del Vecchio. "When we launched the Farmers Market last year in partnership with Albany County and the Downtown Albany BID, we did so to further invest in our mutual commitment to building healthy communities. We are proud to offer an expanded Farmers Market this year to provide access to non-traditional health and well-being options while also supporting local businesses, artists, and entertainers."

With the success of last year's market series, our community showed us that this market is quickly becoming a valuable resource for our residents, and an attraction for visitors. We look forward to offering even more fresh, affordable, locally farmed produce, meat, dairy, and other staples as well as delicious baked goods, ready-to-eat meals and beverages from local vendors, while widening this platform for local artists and makers to showcase and sell their products. The BID thanks the County Executive and MVP Health Care for recognizing the need for this market and dedicating the necessary resources to ensure its continued growth and prosperity," said Downtown Albany BID Executive Director, Georgette Steffens.

Parking will be free at the MVP Arena Parking Garage on Beaver Street.

Vendor applications are now being accepted. For more information about the Farmers Market Series or to sign up as a vendor, visit albanycountyfarmersmarket. com to apply and learn more.
